

Tyre Bale Trials

Eastern Half

The excavated hole was lined with a geogrid, which was then wrapped round the bales as each layer was placed

This formed an envelope around the bales to prevent their escape if ever exposed to wave action

At the same time shingle was forced into voids between tyre bales as block was constructed

After the final layer was laid sea water was pumped over the area to further encourage shingle into voids

